Hi Alex,

Looking at those photos and given the very limited impact of what is being proposed I think the likelihood of the works impacting on bats is fairly small. I would suggest adding a bat informative (something like the one below) to Lisa's previous response with no ecology objection raised.

"In the unlikely event that a bat is found should permission be granted, works should stop immediately and Natural England informed: <https://www.bats.org.uk/advice/bat-found-during-building-works>"

Regards

Paul
