

For the measurements, depending on the length of the branch, it would be between 90 and 130cm, bringing the branches back to where they were previously pruned. As shown below and highlights in green the following images show where branches have already snapped/broken off and one which is snapped but hasn't fallen yet.

