Proposal for fence alongside railway line

9.2.24 Mark Ellison

The fence has now been moved to an alignment much nearer the existing railway fence. This minimizes the reduction in the area of public open space and is now acceptable.

However there appears to be an issue with the planting. Specifically, the native whip mix areas. It looks as if some of these areas were truncated (reduced in area) at the time that the previous alignment of the new fence was drawn on the plans. The full area has not been restored since the fence was moved to be very close to the existing boundary, and this should be done.

If the case officer is able to give me the planning application ref. number for the previous application when the original plans for this area were approved, then I can check this and make more specific recommendations.
