Lavinia Barney Bowers, with her basket of wares to "hawk". In the true gypsy tradition, she was burned with her wagon when she died.

Isn't there an amazing resemblance to her grandmother, Jane White Black?

Botany Bay

The community of the Botany Bay area of Sholing has always been a very close one and for this reason it is not easy to illustrate. However, this chapter does contain a unique collection from personal family records which have never before been published. It gives an insight into the varied activities carried on in Sholing earlier this century. These include strawberry growing and picking, hop-picking, log-selling, flower-selling, etc., as well as some of the family groups with their homes.
